Examiner's Statement of Reason For Allowance

1. The prior art of record does not teach nor fairly suggest a method, and system for controlling a table containing a list of active objects. The table is accessed by one or more threads in a multi-threaded computing environment. The method includes the steps of mutex locking the table with a first thread when activating an object provided that the table is not locked by a second thread, and creating an entry for the object in the table when the entry does not exist in the table, wherein the entry includes a reference count. The method also include the steps of incrementing the reference count of the object if the table is locked by the second thread, and unlocking the table from the mutex lock after incrementing the reference count whether or not the object is completely activated.

The method may also provide the steps of etherealizing the object only when the reference count of the object is zero, and incrementing a reactivation count if the object is etherealizing when the first thread attempts to activate the object, wherein the entry of the table further includes the reactivation count. Further, the method can also comprise the steps of broadcasting the reactivation count to wake any waiting object to reactivate the etherealized object, and decrementing the reference count after dispatching a request on the object. It should be noted that the method can also include the step of deactivating the object only when the reference count is equal to zero.

Conclusion:

2. The cited prior art of record lacks sufficient scope and implementation detail to fairly teach or suggest the combination of limitations claimed in the instant invention when the claimed
